¹ An order was issued on January 25, 1980, but various issues were held for a future hearing and the final order on revenue requirement was not issued until April 12, 1982.

² On November 8, 1982, the Commission issued an order in Docket No. 82-035-13 authorizing Utah Power an interim rate increase to be implemented on an across-the-board basis “until the Commission issues its Order in Case Nos. 79-035-12, 80-035-17, and 81-035-13, at which time the spread ordered by the Commission in those cases shall be applied to the award granted in this case.”

³ The Commission decided some rate design issues in the January 30, 1984 order, but for most issues “deferred the adoption of a cost-of-service study and the spread of revenues among the various classes.”

⁴ Given that the test period for Docket No. 80-057-01 was calendar year 1980, the test period for Docket No. 81-057-17 was from October 1, 1981 through September 30, 1982, and the test period in Docket No. 82-057-17 was September 1, 1982 through August 31, 1983, the test period in Docket No. 81-057-17 must have overlapped with the test period used in a prior case.

⁵ A preliminary revenue requirement order issued May 2, 1983 but was not finalized until August 8, 1983.

⁶ Consolidated with Docket No. 83-057-12.

⁷ Although the order does not identify the test period, it does state that the test period overlapped with the test period in the prior case.

⁸ A rate spread order was issued on December 21, 1981, but was modified on April 21, 1982.

⁹ Test periods for 1980 and 1981 Mountain Bell cases were not stated in the order; information is based on recollection of former Qwest in-house counsel.

¹⁰ The November 30, 1983 order on revenue requirement stated that the rate spread issues in that case would not be determined until the next rate case. It was ultimately resolved in the rate spread order in Docket No. 84-049-01 dated April 29, 1985.
