Dear Sirs,

On behalf of JRC lighting I would recommend that the proposed tariff change to allow the "upstream" big box retailers expand their role in the LED downlight trims be reconsidered.

We understand RMP's intention on cost effectiveness however the "off the shelf" reduced pricing really confuses the marketplace on what the real cost of these items are . Many Customers think the Distributors are gouging on their pricing because they have seen a much lower price for an LED lamp at their local big box retailer. Electrical Contractors do not understand that the "big box" lamps are not intended for commercial installations. Why should they have to go through the additional hassle of going through the Commercial Incentive program? "I'll just go buy my lamps down the street".

The Electrical Distributors should be allowed the same "Upstream Incentive" opportunities on the LED lamps & Trims as the Retailers.

Regards,

Jim Levy, LC
