Re: Docket No. 11-999-05 RMP's request for extension of filing deadline

On December 24, 2012,¹ Rocky Mountain Power (“Company”) filed with the Commission a request for extension of filing dead line for its proposed performance baselines in Docket No. 11-999-05. Rule 746-313-4(2), which became effective on September 24, 2012, requires the Company to make such a filing,

“Within 3 months after the effective date of these rules an electric company whose governing authority is the commission must file for commission approval of reliability performance baselines for SAIDI and SAIFI reliability indices.”

The deadline for this filing was on December 24, 2013. In its request, the Company indicates that it has completed its baseline report but that the proposal is going through the final review process. Hence, is not available to be filed in a timely manner. The Company is requesting a two week extension. The Division believes that a two week extension will allow the Company adequate time to make the proper filing. Additionally, the Division believes a two week extension will not impair the public interest and, therefore, is reasonable. Therefore, the ¹ The Company's letter is dated December 31, 2012 but arrived on December 24th.

Division recommends the Commission to approve the Company request for extension to January 7, 2013.
