To Whom it May Concern,

I am strongly opposed to a flat monthly rate of $4.95 for home owners who have solar panels and use net metering.

This unfair rate will discourage consumers from adopting alternative fuels. The argument that consumers need to pay their "fair share" for supporting the power infrastructure is not valid. We have already paid our fair share for building the current infrastructure that is dependent on fossil fuels. Our community must look to the future and establish policies that reduce the use of dirty non-renewable energy.

This rate increase should be rejected by the Public Service Commission.
