

How to catch the big concerts in Utah this summer

From the Delta Center to the Utah First Credit Union Amphitheatre, from a festival in Torrey to shows outdoors in Park City, these are the major shows of summer 2024.

By SEAN P. MEANS and PALAK JAYSWAL

Somewhere music sounds different under the stars — particularly in Utah, where venues are sometimes nestled among the mountains, allowing the rhythms to reverberate and the melodies to linger in the thin summer air.

The summer of 2024 promises a full plate of musical offerings — from the wide-open spaces of the recently renamed Utah First Credit Union Amphitheatre and the venerable Red Butte Garden to the indoor venues of the Delta Center and Maverik Center. Some shows are part of concert series, like the Twilight offerings in both Salt Lake City and Ogden, or festivals ranging from First Desolation in Torrey to the Country Fan Fest in Tooele.

Here's a rundown, by venue, of the major concerts scheduled to play along the Wasatch Front — and a few other places — through the summer into the early fall. It's nearly 200 shows in all. Enjoy the music.
