Man charged in woman’s fentanyl death

BY CURTIS BOOKER
Daily Herald

A Spanish Fork man has been ordered to remain in custody under a federal indictment for allegedly giving a woman fentanyl last December that resulted in her death. Jared Kory Titcomb, 28, is accused of supplying fentanyl to the victim on Christmas Eve of last year, according to court documents. The next morning, a family member found her dead, as a result of using fentanyl, the U.S. Attorney’s Office determined. Law enforcement learned that the victim contacted Titcomb on Christmas Eve to purchase the drug. Through their investigation, it reportedly was discovered that the victim died of a drug overdose and had fentanyl in her system at the time of her death. Titcomb now faces charges of distribution of fentanyl resulting in death. The investigation is being handled by the Spanish Fork Police Department and the Utah County Major Crimes Task Force.

Funeral for officer who was killed on duty set for Monday

BY CURTIS BOOKER

Funeral arrangements for Santaquin Police officer Sgt. Bill Hooser are set for next week.

Sgt. Spencer Cannon with the Utah County Sheriff’s Office confirmed to the Daily Herald that the service will take place at the UCCU Events Center at Utah Valley University in Orem at 10 a.m. Monday.

Hooser was killed in the line of duty Sunday when authorities say 42-year-old Micheal Jayne intentionally hit the officer with a semitruck after fleeing a traffic stop on Interstate 15 in Santaquin.

Jayne eventually was arrested after he reportedly crashed a stolen pickup truck during a police pursuit in Vernal over 150 miles away from where initial incident occurred.

Hooser leaves behind a wife, two daughters and their spouses, and his new granddaughter. In the wake of the tragedy, a crowdfunding account set up to support the officer’s family has amassed over $100,000 since Sunday.

Monday’s funeral will be followed by a procession to the Santaquin cemetery.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony and pay their respects to the fallen officer.

Activists flood line with hoax reports

SALT LAKE CITY — Transgender activists have flooded a Utah tip line created to alert state officials to possible violations of a new bathroom law with thousands of hoax reports in an effort to shield trans residents and their allies from any legitimate complaints that could lead to an investigation. The onslaught has led the state official tasked by law with managing the tip line, Utah Auditor John Dougall, to bemoan getting stuck with the cumbersome task of filtering through fake complaints while also facing backlash for enforcing a law he had no role in passing. “No auditor goes into auditing so they can be the bathroom monitors,” Dougall said Tuesday. “I think there were much better ways for the Legislature to go about addressing their concerns, rather than this ham-handed approach.” In the week since it launched, the online tip line already has received more than 10,000 submissions, none of which seem legitimate, he said. The form asks people to report public school employees who knowingly allow someone to use a facility designated for the opposite sex.

ISRAEL-HAMAS WAR

US won't supply weapons for Israel to attack Rafah

BY ZEKE MILLER AND AAMER MADHANI
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Joe Biden said Wednesday that he would not supply offensive weapons that Israel could use to launch an all-out assault on Rafah — the last major Hamas stronghold in Gaza — over concern for the well-being of the more than 1 million civilians sheltering there.

Biden, in an interview with CNN, said the U.S. was still committed to Israel's defense and would supply Iron Dome rocket interceptors and other defensive arms, but that if Israel goes into Rafah, "we're not going to supply the weapons and artillery shells used."

The U.S. has historically provided enormous amounts of military aid to Israel. That has only accelerated in the aftermath of Hamas' Oct. 7 attack that killed some 1,200 in Israel and led to about 250 being taken captive by militants. Biden's comments and his decision last week to pause a shipment of heavy bombs to Israel are the most striking manifestations of the growing daylight between his administration and Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government. Biden has said that Israel needs to do far more to protect the lives of civilians in Gaza.

The shipment was supposed to consist of 1,800 2,000-pound bombs and 1,700 500-pound bombs, according to a senior U.S. administration official who spoke on the condition of anonymity to discuss the sensitive matter. The focus of U.S. concern was the larger explosives and how they could be used in a dense urban area.

"Civilians have been killed in Gaza as a consequence of those bombs and other ways in which they go after population centers," Biden told CNN. "I made it clear that if they go into Rafah — they haven't gone in Rafah yet — if they go into Rafah, I'm not supplying the weapons that have been used historically to deal with Rafah, to deal with the cities, that deal with that problem."

Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin earlier Wednesday confirmed the weapons delay, telling the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on defense that the U.S. paused "one shipment of high payload munitions."

"We're going to continue to do what's necessary to ensure that Israel has the means to defend itself," Austin said. "But that said, we are currently reviewing some near-term security assistance shipments in the context of unfolding events in Rafah."

It also comes as the Biden administration is due to deliver a first-of-its-kind formal verdict this week on whether the airstrikes on Gaza and restrictions on delivery of aid have violated international and U.S. laws designed to spare civilians from the worst horrors of war. A decision against Israel would further add to pressure on Biden to curb the flow of weapons and money to Israel's military.

Biden signed off on the pause in an order conveyed last week to the Pentagon, according to U.S. officials who were not authorized to comment on the matter. The White House National Security Council sought to keep the decision out of the public eye for several days until it had a better understanding of the scope of Israel's intensified military operations in Rafah and until Biden could deliver a long-planned speech on Tuesday to mark Holocaust Remembrance Day.

Biden's administration in April began reviewing future transfers of military assistance as Netanyahu's government appeared to move closer toward an invasion of Rafah, despite months of opposition from the White House. The official said the decision to pause the shipment was made last week and no final decision had been made yet on whether to proceed with the shipment at a later date.

U.S. officials had declined for days to comment on the halted transfer, word of which came as Biden on Tuesday described U.S. support for Israel as "iron-clad, even when we disagree."

Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Gilad Erdan, in an interview with Israeli Channel 12 TV news, said the decision to pause the shipment was "a very disappointing decision, even frustrating." He suggested the move stemmed from political pressure on Biden from Congress, the U.S. campus protests and the upcoming election.

The decision also drew a sharp rebuke from House Speaker Mike Johnson and Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell, who said they only learned about the military aid holdup from press reports, despite assurances from the Biden administration that no such pauses were in the works. The Republicans called on Biden in a letter to swiftly end the blockage, saying it "risks emboldening Israel's enemies," and to brief lawmakers on the nature of the policy reviews.

Biden has faced pressure from some on the left — and condemnation from the critics on the right who say Biden has moderated his support for an essential Mideast ally. "If we stop weapons necessary to destroy the enemies of the state of Israel at a time of great peril, we will pay a price," said Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., his voice rising in anger during an exchange with Austin. "This is obscene. It is absurd. Give Israel what they need to fight the war they can't afford to lose."

Independent Sen. Bernie Sanders of Vermont, a Biden ally, said in a statement the pause on big bombs must be a "first step."

"Our leverage is clear," Sanders said. "Over the years, the United States has provided tens of billions of dollars in military aid to Israel. We can no longer be complicit in Netanyahu's horrific war against the Palestinian people."

Austin, meanwhile, told lawmakers that "it's about having the right kinds of weapons for the task at hand."

"A small diameter bomb, which is a precision weapon, that's very useful in a dense, built-up environment," he said, "but maybe not so much a 2,000-pound bomb that could create a lot of collateral damage." He said the U.S. wants to see Israel do "more precise" operations.

Israeli troops on Tuesday seized control of Gaza's vital Rafah border crossing in what the White House described as a limited operation that stopped short of the full-on Israeli invasion of the city that Biden has repeatedly warned against on humanitarian grounds, most recently in a Monday call with Netanyahu.

Israel has ordered the evacuation of 100,000 Palestinians from the city. Israeli forces have also carried out what it describes as "targeted strikes" on the eastern part of Rafah and captured the Rafah crossing, a critical conduit for the flow of humanitarian aid along the Gaza-Egypt border.

BLT'S

Bacon - 12 slices, cooked
Mayonnaise - 3/4 cup
Pepper - to taste
Tomatoes - 3 each, wash and diced
Sliced Bread - 1 bags
Romaine Lettuce -1 heads, wash and separate so it's easy to eat
Salt - to taste

INSTRUCTIONS:

Lay your bacon out on a pan that is covered with foil (for easy clean-up). Fill up your pan with bacon and place in your preheated oven at 425 degrees for 15 to 35 minutes. This depends on how crispy you like you bacon. We like ours crispy. Put your toast in the toaster oven until golden brown and set aside. Slice your tomatoes and set aside. Wash, dry and separate your lettuce and set aside. After your bacon is done start to assemble your BLT by laying out your toasted bread in twos. Take a knife and spread mayonnaise on both pieces of toasted bread and start layering the bacon, lettuce and tomato. After, shake some salt and pepper on top of your tomato and place the second piece of bread on top. All of these flavors together are so refreshing and delicious. This is perfect with soup in the cooler months or with fresh fruit in the summer months. Enjoy!

House rejects Rep. Greene’s effort to remove speaker

BY LISA MASCARO AND KEVIN FREKING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Hardline Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene tried and failed in sudden action Wednesday to oust House Speaker Mike Johnson, her long-shot effort swiftly and resoundingly rejected by Democrats and Republicans tired of the political chaos.

One of Donald Trump’s biggest supporters in Congress, Greene stood on the House floor and read a long list of “transgressions” she said Johnson had committed as speaker. Colleagues booed in protest.

Greene criticized Johnson’s leadership as “pathetic, weak and unacceptable.”

After Greene triggered the vote on her motion to vacate the speaker from his office, Republican Majority Leader Steve Scalise quickly countered by calling first for a vote to table it.

An overwhelming majority, 359-43, kept Johnson in his job, for now. “As I’ve said from the beginning, and I’ve made clear here every day, I intend to do my job,” Johnson said afterward. “And I’ll let the chips fall where they may. In my view, that is leadership.”

It’s the second time in a matter of months that Republicans have worked to oust their own speaker, an unheard-of level of party turmoil with a move rarely seen in U.S. history.

The tally shows the strengths but also the stark limits of Johnson’s hold on the gavel, and the risks ahead for any Republican trying to lead the GOP in the Trump era. Without Democratic help, Johnson would have certainly faced a more dismal outcome.

All told, 11 Republicans voted to proceed with Greene’s effort, more than it took to oust then-Speaker Kevin McCarthy last fall, a first in U.S. history. And the threat still lingers — any single lawmaker can call up the motion to vacate the speaker.

Johnson said he hoped it “is the end of the personality politics.”

As Greene pressed ahead with the snap vote despite pushback from Republicans at the highest levels, including Trump, GOP lawmakers filtered towards Johnson, giving him pats on the back and grasping his shoulder to assure him of their support.

The Georgia Republican had vowed weeks ago she would force a vote on the motion to vacate the Republican speaker if he dared to advance a foreign aid package for Ukraine, which was overwhelmingly approved late last month and signed into law.

But in recent days it seemed her effort had cooled, as she and Johnson met repeatedly for a potential resolution.

Johnson of Louisiana marched on, saying he had been willing to take the Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene, R-Ga., joined by Rep. Thomas Massie, R-Ky., speaks to reporters after she tried and failed to oust House Speaker Mike Johnson, her long-shot effort swiftly and resoundingly rejected by Democrats and Republicans tired of the political chaos, at the Capitol in Washington on Wednesday.

risk to approve the foreign aid, believing it was important for the U.S. to back Ukraine against Russia’s invasion and explaining he wanted to be on the “right side of history.”

In a highly unusual move, the speaker received a boost from Democrats led by Rep. Hakeem Jeffries of New York, whose leadership team had said it was time to “turn the page” on the GOP turmoil and vote to table Greene’s resolution — almost ensuring Johnson’s job is saved, for now.

“Our decision to stop Marjorie Taylor Greene from plunging the country into further chaos is rooted in our commitment to solve problems,” Jeffries said after the vote.

Trump had also weighed in after Johnson trekked to Mar-a-Lago last month for support, the presumptive Republican presidential nominee giving the speaker his nod of approval. And Trump’s hand-picked leader at the Republican National Committee urged House Republicans off the move.

Ahead of House voting, Trump said on social media, “I absolutely love Marjorie Taylor Greene,” but he said Republicans need to be fighting now to defeat Democrats in the November election. He urged Republicans to table Greene’s motion.

“At some point, we may very well be, but this is not the time,” Trump said, to oust the speaker.

The move now poses its own political risks for Greene, a high-profile provocateur who has moved to the forefront of the party with her own massive following and proximity to Trump.

Greene was determined to force her colleagues to be on the record with their vote — putting them in the politically uncomfortable position of backing the speaker and seen as joining forces with Democrats to save him.

“I’m proud of what I did today,” Greene said afterward on the Capitol steps.

While reporters and camera crews crowded around Greene and ally Rep. Thomas Massie, R-Ky., a group of other Republicans gathered on the steps trying to shift the attention away from her and make their own views known.

Rep. Dusty Johnson, R-S.D., said of those trying to remove the speaker, “They’re pretty good at getting attention, but they have not been recognized for their ability to get things done.”

He said if they keep pushing to oust the speaker, “I think you can expect more of the same: Failure.”

Reps. Carlos Giménez, a Florida Republican, said of Greene: “She doesn’t represent the Republican Party. I’m tired of of this being the face or the voice of the party and getting attention. That’s all she wants, is the attention.”

Rep. Mike Lawler, R-N.Y., called for Greene and Massie to be punished for their actions.

Had Democrats not taken the unusual move to help, the vote would most likely have ended differently for Johnson who holds one of the slimmest majorities in the House in modern times, with no votes to spare.

Biden admin to propose tougher asylum standards for some migrants at the border

BY SEUNG MIN KIM AND STEPHEN GROVES
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Biden administration plans to propose a new rule Thursday aimed at speeding up the asylum claims process for some migrants — a potential prelude to broader actions from President Joe Biden later this year that would impose a bigger crackdown at the border.

It’s meant to affect migrants with criminal records or those who would otherwise be eventually deemed ineligible for asylum in the United States. The proposal, which the Department of Homeland Security plans to announce on Thursday, was confirmed by four people familiar with its contents who were granted anonymity to detail plans not yet public.

Under current law, a migrant who arrives at the border and undergoes an initial screening for “credible fear” — one criterion for asylum — is allowed to continue with the process even if they have a criminal background or would pose a security risk. A judge would later determine whether that migrant would be eligible for asylum.

The change would effectively let an officer at the initial screening stage make that determination, rather than waiting for a judge, according to the people. The people also said the proposal affects a relatively small universe of migrants and those who would not be qualified to receive asylum protections anyway.

But despite those caveats, immigration advocates have previously raised questions about any changes to the credible fear process, saying that migrants are often doing these interviews immediately after surviving life-threatening perilous trips to get to the U.S.

Because of this, initial interviews are designed to have a relatively lower bar so that migrants aren’t wrongfully deported, they say. And they’ve questioned how much legal help migrants who are in custody can actually get in order to prepare them for this key first step toward an asylum claim.

It will likely be months before Thursday’s proposal, which was first reported by Politico, would actually go into effect. Biden continues to mull larger executive action on the border, whose timing depends in large part on whether the number of illegal border crossings increases — they have been steadily decreasing since December.

The proposed rule also comes amid pressure from fellow Democrats and immigrant rights advocates to support immigrants already in the United States.

Janet Murguía, the president of UnidosUS, a civil rights advocacy organization, said she met with Biden last week at the White House with other Latino leaders to push for relief for immigrants who do not have legal status but have been in the United States for years.

“I believe that President Biden is open to this notion that he can do something. He asked for more specifics,” Murguía said. “We’re going to make the case in the White House. We’re going to make the case here in the Capitol, across the country, in every community.”

At a news conference Wednesday, Latino and progressive congressional Democrats expressed frustration at the idea that the White

EVAN VUCCI, ASSOCIATED PRESS

House would clamp down on the border without also assisting immigrants who crossed the border illegally as children.

“Mr. President, we know what’s in your heart. Let’s reject the extremist messaging vilifying immigrants. Let’s embrace our values as a nation of immigrants and provide relief for the long-term residents of the United States,” said Sen. Alex Padilla, a California Democrat.

The lawmakers are calling for the Biden administration to provide relief from deportation to spouses and other family members of U.S. citizens, as well as extended temporary protected status, which allows people from countries ravaged by disaster and war to live and work legally in the United States.

At the same time, Democrats, especially those in political swing states, are encouraging the White House to take unilateral action to curtail border crossings.

In the Senate, Democrats are considering whether to put a series of border proposals to a vote in order to show that Republicans are opposed to swifter border enforcement. And in the House, 15 Democrats penned a letter to the White House this week encouraging executive actions.

“We need to make sure that we are adjudicating those who are coming across just as quickly as possible, specifically around sort of administrative judges being down at the southern border,” said Rep. Angie Craig, a Minnesota Democrat who led the letter. “And I do think there’s a limit to the number of people who we can accept into our nation on an asylum claim. At the end of the day, we cannot have a border where an unlimited amount of people can simply cross.”

Medicare and Social Security go-broke dates pushed back

BY FATIMA HUSSEIN AND TOM MURPHY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The go-broke dates for Medicare and Social Security have been pushed back as an improving economy has contributed to changed projected depletion dates, according to the annual Social Security and Medicare trustees report Monday.

Still, officials warn that policy changes are needed lest the programs become unable to pay full benefits to retiring Americans.

Medicare’s go-broke date for its hospital insurance trust fund was pushed back five years to 2036 in the latest report, thanks in part to higher payroll tax income and lower-than-projected expenses from last year. Medicare is the federal government’s health insurance program that covers people age 65 and older and those with severe disabilities or illnesses. It covered more than 66 million people last year, with most being 65 and older.

Once the fund’s reserves become depleted, Medicare would be able to cover only 89% of costs for patients’ hospital visits, hospice care and nursing home stays or home health care that follow hospital visits.

Meanwhile, Social Security’s trust funds — which cover old age and disability recipients — will be unable to pay full benefits beginning in 2035, instead of last year’s estimate of 2034. Social Security would only be able to pay 83% of benefits.

Social Security Administration Commissioner Martin O’Malley called the report “a measure of good news,” but told The Associated Press that “Congress still needs to act in order to avoid what is now forecast to be, in absence of their action, a 17% cut to people’s Social Security benefits.”

About 71 million people — including retirees, disabled people and children — receive Social Security benefits.

President Joe Biden responded to the report by saying that “as long as I am president, I will keep strengthening Social Security and Medicare,” adding that he wants high-income taxpayers “to pay their fair share” to bolster funding for the benefit programs.

Lawmakers have for years kicked Social Security and Medicare’s troubling math to the next generation. Social Security benefits were last reformed roughly 40 years ago, when the federal government raised the eligibility age for the program from 65 to 67. The eligibility age has never changed for Medicare, with people eligible for the medical coverage when they turn 65.

Congressional Budget Office reporting has stated that the biggest drivers of debt rising in relation to GDP are increasing interest costs and spending for Medicare and Social Security. An aging population drives those numbers.

The new report projects that Medicare’s income will be higher than last year’s because the number of covered workers and average wages will be higher. The report also notes that expenses should drop. That’s due mostly to a policy change regarding how Medicare Advantage rates are accounted for and lower-than-expected spending for inpatient hospital and home health agency services.

Medicare Advantage plans are a version of the federal program run by health insurers.

A March 2023 poll by The Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research shows that most U.S. adults are opposed to proposals that would cut into Medicare or Social Security benefits, and a majority support raising taxes on the nation’s highest earners to keep Medicare running as is.

The future of Social Security and Medicare has become a top political talking point as President Joe Biden and Republican former President Donald Trump both campaign for reelection this year.

Biden, a Democrat, has vowed to rebuff any Republican-led efforts to cut Medicare or Social Security benefits to brace for the shortfall. He’s pitched raising taxes on people making $400,000 or more a year, to shore up Medicare. He has not offered up a plan for Social Security, however.

Trump, in an interview with CNBC in March, indicated he would be open to cuts to Social Security and Medicare. The former president said “there is a lot you can do in terms of entitlements, in terms of cutting.”

Sgt. Bill Hooser

Billy Dean Hooser was born on December 18, 1973 to Dayton and Bonnie Reeves Hooser who lived in Cleburne, Texas at the time of his birth. Bill was the second of 7 children. The family moved to Utah in 1984. There Bill met his wife Kinda Edwards in 1992. They were married on September 14, 1995. Together they had two beautiful daughters, Shayle and Courtney. Although Bill loved being a girl dad, he welcomed his two sons-in-law with open arms, and they became his. He loved his family with everything he was and was so proud of them. His first granddaughter was born recently, and he loved being grandpa.

He had a passion for the outdoors and took every opportunity that he could to be out in the mountains camping, or at the sand dunes riding his side by side. He counted his friends as family, and he loved being with them having fun and laughing.

Bill's first real job was framing. He gained a passion for building and carpentry. He built furniture pieces to rival master craftsmen. Approximately 10 years ago, while living in New Mexico, Bill decided to join the Volunteer Reserve Deputies for the San Juan County Sheriff's Department. While volunteering, his passion for serving grew into a need to change careers and become a full-time Law Enforcement Officer with San Juan County Sheriff's office. In 2017, Bill and the family moved back to Utah and he began his career with Santaquin Police Department. His love and passion for the community he served only grew. In a short time, Bill was promoted up the ranks and proudly served as Corporal, Detective, and Sergeant. He was proud of the work that he did and loved the people that he worked with.

Bill was the first one to jump in and help when anyone needed it. A real testament to the man that Bill was, was the many lives that he touched. He made everyone feel like they were his best friend, and they were the most important thing in the world.

Bill was preceded in death by his father Dayton Hooser, and his younger brother John Hooser. He leaves behind his beloved wife Kinda, daughters Shayle Terry (Jake Terry), and Courtney Hooser (Karlson Jones), and his beautiful granddaughter; mother Bonnie Hooser, brothers Randy (Jodie), Ben (Emily), Michael (Brittany); sisters Christi Sagers (Tony) and Chelsea Blau, mother-in-law Alta Edwards; sisters-in-law, Marie (Jeff), Lynn Starley (Troy), Jo Barker (Joe); and brother-in-law Terry Fleming (Kris). Bill is also survived by numerous nieces and nephews who will all miss their Uncle Bill.

Funeral Services will be Monday May 13, 2024 at 10:00 a.m. at the UCCU Events Center at Utah Valley University, 800 West University Parkway, Orem Utah. A public visitation will be held at Apple Valley Elementary, 105 East 770 North Santaquin, Utah on Sunday May 12th from 4:00 - 8:00 p.m. Following the services on Monday, Bill will be escorted to Santaquin City Cemetery, 300 South 100 East. Lucia Everist, of Climate Generation, center, speaks to the Minnesota Youth Council on Feb. 27 in St. Paul, Minn.

High school students press for change

BY ALEXA ST. JOHN AND DOUG GLASS
Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Several dozen young people wearing light blue T-shirts imprinted with #teachclimate filled a hearing room in the Minnesota Capitol in St. Paul in late February. It was a cold and windy day, in contrast to the state's nearly snowless, warm winter.

The high school and college students and other advocates, part of group Climate Generation, called on the Minnesota Youth Council, a liaison between young people and state lawmakers, to support a bill requiring schools to teach more about climate change.

Ethan Vue, who grew up with droughts and extreme temperatures in California, now lives in Minnesota and is a high school senior pushing for the bill.

"I just remember seeing my classmates always sweating, and they'd even drench themselves in water from the water fountains," Vue said in a phone interview, noting climate change is making heat waves longer and hotter, but they didn't learn about that in school.

"The topic is brushed on. If anything, we just learn about, there's global warming, the planet's warming up."

In places that teach to standards formulated by the National Science Teachers Association, state governments and other organizations, many kids learn about air quality, ecosystems, biodiversity and land and water in Earth and environmental science classes.

But students and advocates say that is insufficient. They are demanding districts, boards and state lawmakers require more teaching about the planet's warming and would like it woven into more subjects.

Some states and school districts have moved in the opposite direction. In Texas, the board of education turned down books with climate information. In Florida, school materials deny climate change.

"Someone could theoretically go through middle school and high school without really ever acknowledging the climate crisis," said Jacob Friedman, a high school senior in Florida who hasn't learned about climate except for in elective classes. "Or even acknowledging that there is an issue of global warming."

That's bizarre to Friedman, who experienced firsthand when Hurricane Ian closed nearby schools and submerged homes in 2022.

A study conducted after the storm found that climate change added at least 10% more rain to Hurricane Ian. Experts also say hurricanes are intensifying faster because of the extra greenhouse gases in the atmosphere that are collecting heat and warming the oceans.

"What an unfair reality to have a young person graduate from high school," said Leah Qusba, executive director of nonprofit Action for the Climate Emergency, "without knowing about the biggest existential threat that they're going to face in their lifetime."

Some places are adding more instruction on the subject. In 2020, New Jersey required teaching climate change at all grade levels. Connecticut followed, then California. More than two dozen new measures across 10 states were introduced last year, according to the National Center for Science Education.

Where some proposals require teaching the basic science and human causes of climate change, the Minnesota bill goes further, requiring state officials to guide schools on teaching climate justice, including the idea that the changes hit disadvantaged communities harder.

Some legislators say they've heard from school administrators and teachers who say that goes too far.

"What was said to me is: 'Why are we pushing a political perspective, a political agenda?'" Minnesota Rep. Ben Bakeberg, a Republican, said during a House Education Policy Committee hearing in March 2023. "That's a reality."

The bill didn't advance in the 2023 session. Now it hasn't this year either. Supporters say they will try again next year.

Aware of such opposition, some students interested in climate opt to campaign at their schools rather than through the legislative process.

Three years ago, floods destroyed Ariela Lara's mom's village in Oaxaca, Mexico, while they were visiting. Then Lara came home to California and was hit by smoke-filled skies caused by wildfires that pushed thousands to evacuate or be stuck inside for weeks.

Yet despite what she was seeing, Lara felt in school she was only taught about recycling and carbon footprints, a measure of a person's personal greenhouse gas emissions.

So she went to the board of education.

"I had to really think about how I could go to the people in power to really rewrite the curriculum we were learning," Lara said. "It would get so tiresome because for me, I was the one that was really trying to enforce it."

By the time her school offered Advanced Placement Environmental Science, Lara was too senior to enroll in it. AP Enviro does cover climate change, according to the College Board, but it's also more broad.

When targeted efforts don't work, some students feel they're on their own.

For high school junior Siyeon Joo, climate education seems like a no-brainer where she lives in Lafayette, Louisiana, which was hit hard by Hurricane Katrina in 2005 and has been affected by several other intense storms and heat waves.

But Joo wasn't exposed to climate change at her public middle school and an educator there once told her it wasn't real.

"I remember sitting in that classroom," the now-16-year-old said, "being really angry that that was the system that was being forced upon me at the time."

It took enrolling in a private school for Joo to learn about these topics. Many students don't have that option.

Experts say climate material could be worked into lessons without burdening schools or putting the onus on students. But much like with legislation, that will take time students say they don't have.

Exoplanet twice of Earth's size has a thick atmosphere

BY ADITHI RAMAKRISHNAN
Associated Press

DALLAS — A thick atmosphere has been detected around a planet that's twice as big as Earth in a nearby solar system, researchers reported Wednesday.

The so-called super Earth — known as 55 Cancri e — is among the few rocky planets outside our solar system with a significant atmosphere, wrapped a blanket of carbon dioxide and carbon monoxide. The exact amounts are unclear. Earth's atmosphere is a blend of nitrogen, oxygen, argon and other gases.

"It's probably the firmest evidence yet that this planet has an atmosphere," said Ian Crossfield, an astronomer at the University of Kansas who studies exoplanets and was not involved with the research.

The research was published in the journal Nature.

Super Earth refers to a planet's size — bigger than Earth but smaller than Neptune. The boiling temperatures on this planet — which can reach as hot as 4,200 degrees Fahrenheit — mean that it is unlikely to host life.

Instead, scientists say the discovery is a promising sign that other such rocky planets with thick atmospheres could exist that may be more hospitable.

The exoplanet 41 light years away is eight times heavier than Earth and circles its star Copernicus so closely that it has permanent day and night sides. A light-year is nearly 6 trillion miles. Its surface is encrusted with magma oceans.

To identify the makeup of its atmosphere, researchers studied Webb Space Telescope observations before and after the planet passed behind its star.

They separated the light emitted from the planet versus its star and used the data to calculate the planet's temperature. There's evidence the planet's heat was being distributed more evenly across its surface — a party trick at atmospheres are known for.

Gases from its magma oceans may play a key role in holding its atmosphere steady. Exploring this super Earth may also yield clues to how Earth and Mars might have evolved first with magma oceans that have since cooled, scientists say.

‘Drain the swamp’

Presidential candidate Donald Trump promised to “drain the swamp!”

The “swamp” is the permanent Washington bureaucracy working to perpetuate itself.

In 2020, then-President Trump said he was succeeding: “We’re draining the Washington swamp!”

But it’s not true. “He made gov-ernment bigger,” economist Ed Stringham says in my new video. ‘That’s going in the wrong direction. Looking through a list of agencies, every single one I could see, there were more em-ployees after his presidency than before.’

Trump added almost 2 million jobs to the federal workforce.

He did make some cuts at the State Department, Labor Depart-ment, Education Department and his own office. But total spending under Trump nearly doubled. Some was in response to COVID, but billions in extra spending came before.

That spending increased the size of the swamp. New programs filled Washington with more bureau-crats.

Trump launched a $6 billion “Farmers to Families” Food Box Program to bring food from fa-rmers to families.

“Last I checked,” jokes String-ham, “we have an industry for that. It’s called the supermarket industry. It exists for a reason. Markets are good at getting things from farmer to consumer.”

Trump pandered to women, signing a Women, Peace and Se-curity Act, the Woman Entrepre-neurship and Empowerment Act, the Women’s Global Development and Prosperity Initiative, a Women Entrepreneurs Finance Initiative ...

That just made the swamp big-ger.

Probably permanently.

“Once government implements a program,” Stringham points out, “it becomes very difficult to roll that back. You’ve created a whole new constituency of lobbyists who love their new income.”

Seventy years ago, Congress feared America wouldn’t have enough mohair for soldiers’ uni-forms. So they subsidized mohair production.

Today, the military doesn’t use mohair. But the subsidy continues.

“We’re stuck with it,” says Stringham, “because now there’s a whole group of new people on the payroll who like what they have.”

At least Trump acknowledges his failure to drain the swamp.

“When I said it, it sounded very easy and it was going to happen real fast,” he says. “I didn’t know the swamp was this dirty and this deep.”

Elect me again, he promises, and “we will drain the swamp once and for all.”

I doubt it.

Trump doesn’t understand the source of the swamp.

When a reporter called him out, saying, “You didn’t drain the swamp like you said you would,” Trump replied, “I did. I fired Comey. I fired a lot of people.”

“He fired a couple people,” re-plies Stringham, “but hiring addi-tional people for government jobs — that’s not draining the swamp; that’s making things worse.”

Much worse, because once you hire government employees, it’s nearly impossible to fire them.

They “can show up late, not show up at all, show up drunk,” says popular Youtuber Armand Curet, who works for the Depart-ment of Housing and Urban De-velopment.

Instead of hiring more bureau-crats, Trump could have turned to the private sector.

“Privatize!” Exclaims String-ham. “Government doesn’t need to be doing all these things. We have markets.”

Markets work better. They even create things people assume can only be done by government.

When I ask people, “Who built NYC’s subways?” everyone an-swers, “Government.”

But it’s not true. Private compa-nies built most of them.

Politicians then forbade the en-trepreneurs to raise prices from a nickel to a dime, driving them out of business. The city took over the subways and, guess what ... raised the price much more.

Private enterprise is simply more efficient.

America doesn’t need the Labor, Agriculture, Commerce depart-ments. Those things just happen. They work better if government gets out of the way.

Trump didn’t privatize any de-partment.

“He did do some deregulation,” I say to Stringham.

“Government spending in-creased dramatically,” Stringham replies. “I don’t see that as drain-ing the swamp. I see that as mak-ing the swamp a lot bigger.”

There’s only one way to drain it, he adds: “Don’t have the govern-ment in control of so many things.”

Every Tuesday at JohnStossel.com, Stossel posts a new video about the battle between government and freedom. He is the author of “Give Me a Break: How I Exposed Huck-sters, Cheats, and Scam Artists and Became the Scourge of the Liberal Media.”

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, May 9, the 130th day of 2024. There are 236 days left in the year.

Today’s Highlight in History

On May 9, 1994, South Africa’s newly elected parliament chose Nelson Mandela to be the country’s first Black president.

On this date

In 1860, writer J.M. Barrie, the creator of Peter Pan, was born in Kirriemuir, Scotland.

In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson, acting on a joint congressional resolution, signed a proclamation designating the second Sunday in May as Mother’s Day.

In 1945, with World War II in Europe at an end, Soviet forces liberated Czechoslovakia from Nazi occupation. U.S. officials announced that a midnight entertainment curfew was being lifted immediately.

In 1951, the U.S. conducted its first thermonuclear experiment as part of Operation Greenhouse by detonating a 225-kiloton device on Enewetak Atoll in the Pacific nicknamed “George.”

In 1962, scientists at the Massachu-setts Institute of Technology succeeded in reflecting a laser beam off the surface of the moon.

In 1965, Russian-born American pianist Vladimir Horowitz performed publicly for the first time in 12 years with a recital at Carnegie Hall in New York.

In 1970, President Richard Nixon made a surprise and impromptu pre-dawn visit to the Lincoln Memorial, where he chatted with a group of protesters who’d been resting on the Memorial steps after protests against the Vietnam War and the Kent State shootings.

In 1974, the House Judiciary Commit-tee opened public hearings on whether to recommend the impeachment of President Richard Nixon. (The commit-tee ended up adopting three articles of impeachment against the president, who resigned before the full House took up any of them.)

In 1980, 35 people were killed when a freighter rammed the Sunshine Sky-way Bridge over Tampa Bay in Florida, causing a 1,400-foot section of the southbound span to collapse.

In 2016, Filipinos went to the polls to elect Rodrigo Duterte, the controversial, tough-talking mayor of Davao city, to be their country’s next president.

In 2019, Pope Francis issued a groundbreaking new church law requiring all Catholic priests and nuns to report clergy sexual abuse and cover-ups by their superiors to church authorities.

In 2020, Rock n’ roll pioneer Little Richard, known for his piercing wail, pounding piano and towering pompa-dour, died in Tennessee at the age of 87 after battling bone cancer; he had helped shatter the color line on the music charts while introducing Black R&B to white America.

Hard feelings breaking things

You know the way Shake-speare created a portrait of a family’s hard feelings in King Lear, his tragedy about a raging, storming English king with three daughters? That play, set in Gloucester, speaks to me now of how Congress and the country are fall-ing apart.

It even takes me back to the Civil War.

Shakespeare got it right. Conflicts and conversations within a family may be buried alive but come back to haunt one when stepped upon, like a stone or a land mine. Words fly like, well, slings and arrows. They may never be taken back, forgotten or forgiven.

Congress, which I cover, is a mirror of those emotions writ large. The House of Represen-tatives is so full of anger, cold and hot, that 44 members are quitting in disgust. (That’s about 10% of the 435 Representatives.) Those rushing for the exits in-clude their best and brightest Republicans.

The damage is lasting. “Bro-ken” and “dysfunctional” are the words the leave-takers use most, just like a family.

They just can’t take it anymore. I don’t blame them. The verbal warfare on the floor and in com-mittee work just never seems to stop. There are several pugna-cious members, but one takes the cake.

Georgia’s Marjorie Taylor Greene, the vocal MAGA de-stroyer, recently led an impeach-ment of a Cabinet member, which was dismissed in the Senate.

Now Greene is threatening to force a motion to oust House Speaker Mike Johnson (R-La.). It is a dagger and distraction that House Democrats behold with bemusement, knowing their Re-publican colleagues are getting sick of her attacks poisoning the well of the House.

Greene’s hard words have reached a breaking point within her own party.

Standing up to her threats, Johnson allowed a bipartisan vote on Ukraine military aid to go for-ward. This was a major moment of truth for dealing in good faith. As kind of a handshake, House Democratic Leader Hakeem Jef-fries (N.Y.) said his party will vote against a motion to remove Johnson.

Former Speaker Kevin McCa-rthy fell at the hands of a hard-right group of Republicans, the Freedom Caucus — which actu-ally kicked Greene out.

Her latest gambit is to get John-son to “defund” Special Counsel Jack Smith, who charged four criminal indictments against for-mer President Donald Trump.

Yes, she’s Trump’s right hand in the House, but she’ll never be named as his running mate. A vicious female who brings sound and fury wherever she goes will not be Trump’s pick. He likes to provide all that thunder himself. Look for Sens. Tim Scott or J.D. Vance (possibly).

The country feels somewhat shipwrecked, too, as the 2024 election draws near. Friendships across the divide between Trump and President Joe Biden are fad-ing fast. This election is a matter of life or death for the republic, as envisioned in the Constitu-tion.

Remember, my friends, Trump means every hard word he says. He can’t control boasts and threats about seeking “retribu-tion” and being a dictator on “day one.”

His aides are drawing up plans on how to maximize the power of the presidency and weaken government agencies such as the departments of Justice and Envi-ronmental Protection.

Trump has sown seeds of anger wherever he’s trod. The tragedy is that he changed the American public’s character by, like the rav-ing mad King Lear, bringing out the worst in us.

We shall never forget the Jan. 6 mob descending on the Capitol, Trump’s final stand and gift to the nation.

That was the best day of his life, which is why he enjoyed the scene for three hours.

As an amateur historian, lately I’ve been thinking about the Civil War and all the hard feelings it caused. How the Confederate spirit lived on and on — and on — in Ku Klux Klan violence, Jim Crow segregation, United Daugh-ters of the Confederacy statues and monuments.

Yes, even in William Faulkner’s literature: he wrote a sentimental line about the doomed Pickett’s Charge at the Battle of Gettys-burg.

Most thought the Civil War ended in 1865, so they went about their lives and business.

Little did the Union know the “Lost Cause” would be burned into generations as something noble — causing hard feelings that never did die.

BYU ROUNDUP

Cougar stars named for All-Big 12 First Team

BYU SPORTS INFORMATION

BYU softball first baseman Huntlyr Ava and shortstop Ailana Agbayani were both named to the 2024 All-Big 12 First Team, the conference announced on Wednesday morning.

The Cougars were one of six teams represented on the 18-player first team, and one of just four teams to place multiple student-athletes on the team.

Ava finished Big 12 play leading the league with a .446 batting average and 37 hits. She was also second in RBI (36), fourth in slugging percentage (.738) and tied for sixth in home runs (8).

On the season, the Rose Park product leads the team in slugging percentage (.698), RBI (62), home runs (12) and total bases (111). She has three of the BYU's seven grand slams in 2024, including a walk-off shot in the ninth inning to win the series against Houston.

This is the third all-conference first team honor for Ava. She was also named to the All-WCC First Team in 2022 and 2023.

Agbayani concluded conference play tied for second in the Big 12 with 33 hits, and scored the third most runs, with 28. She also had the sixth best batting average (.402) and slugging percentage (.519).

A native of Mililani Mauka, Hawaii, she leads the Cougars in batting average (.426), on base percentage (.539), runs scored (58), hits (69), hit by pitch (11), stolen bases (12) and at bats (162) this season.

This is the second all-conference first team nod of Agbayani's career. She was an All-WCC First Team honoree last season as well.

BYU will be back in action today, May 9, taking on No. 3-seed Oklahoma State in the Big 12 Championship quarterfinal at 11 a.m. CDT, with coverage through Big 12 Now on ESPN+.

Cougar men's basketball signs former Utah big man Keba Keita

BYU men's basketball announced the addition of former Utah center Keba Keita on Wednesday.

"We couldn't be more excited to welcome Keba to BYU," head coach Kevin Young said. "He fits into our program perfectly both on and off the court. He brings a level of toughness, athleticism, and defense that has been a big priority for us. I can't wait to get to work with him."

In his two seasons on The Hill, the native of Bamako, Mali, appeared in 66 games including 13 starts where he averaged 5.8 points and 4.5 rebounds per game.

As a sophomore in 2023-24, Keita appeared in 35 games including 13 starts for a Ute squad that won 22 games and advanced to the semifinal of the NIT. He

DELTA CENTER

Smith group shares vision for NHL and Salt Lake City

BY ALIXEL CABRERA
Utah News Dispatch

The Smith Entertainment Group revealed more details of its plans to revitalize Salt Lake City's downtown to accommodate its new National Hockey League team, including the project's location and the company's intent to renovate the Salt Palace Convention Center.

The area the company is expecting to tackle is primarily three blocks; the Delta Center's block and the two blocks east of the arena that lead toward City Creek, Mike Maughan, the principal from Smith Entertainment Group who will lead the revitalization zone project, said in a presentation to the Salt Lake City Council on Tuesday.

The path to fund and approve the downtown revitalization and renovations to the Delta Center to host NHL games is moving fast on the City Council. The city's legislative body is expected to give the final nod to a citywide 0.5% raise in sales taxes before Sept. 1.

"The money from this tax, should the council approve it, some of that will, of course, go to help the renovation of the Delta Center to fit hockey into the arena," Maughan said in his presentation, sitting between Salt Lake City Mayor Erin Mendenhall and Salt Lake County Mayor Jenny Wilson.

The size of a hockey rink nearly doubles a basketball court, he said. But, a lot of the money will go to the development of the new downtown district, which the developer estimates will have a substantial economic impact.

Smith Entertainment Group has preliminarily estimated that it will invest at least $3 billion in the downtown area, but Maughan anticipates that figure will be much higher, he said.

"As we've run a new total economic impact report on the NHL, it's estimated that the NHL alone will bring an additional $288 million of economic impact into Salt Lake City," Maughan said, citing a Kem Garden C. Gardner Institute study.

During the presentation, Maughan shared an aspirational rendering of the area that Ryan Smith, who owns Smith Entertainment Group with his wife, Ashley Smith, posted on social media back in February as he was pursuing acquiring an NHL team.

Though the rendering of the vision for the revitalization zone is not final, it shows that some of the walls from places such as The Gateway and the Salt Palace are expected to be torn down to "restore connectivity and flow, reuniting the east and west sides of downtown," according to Maughan.

That flow also means improved walkability, safety and sustainability, he added.

The presentation comes after the Utah Legislature's approval of SB272, a bill that carved a path for Salt Lake City to increase sales taxes for up to 30 years to raise about $1 billion to partially fund the redevelopment project

HIRING NEW STAFF

BYU
1-ON-1

WITH DARNELL DICKSON AND JARED LLOYD

What should be expected from the updated Cougar basketball staff?

Daily Herald sports writers Darnell Dickson and Jared Lloyd give their opinions on the hot BYU sports topics this week:

1. What's the biggest positive to new BYU

men's basketball coach Kevin Young hiring Chris Burgess as an assistant? And while we're at it, why did Burgess make what some would consider a lateral move from Utah?

DICKSON: My biggest concern for Young is recruiting. He certainly has a great resume and can get the attention of plenty of recruits, but bringing the right guys to Provo is really, really important.

It's one thing to have an intellectual knowledge of recruiting under the Honor Code. It's quite another to have practical experience in recruiting to BYU with the Honor Code in mind.

That's where Burgess comes in. He was on Mark Pope's staff for three years and understands what recruiting to BYU means in the real world. Burgess said the Cougars want to own the state of Utah and that's great, but his experience recruiting to BYU nationally will be key.

As for why Burgess came to BYU, he said there were multiple

State tournament brackets revealed, AF gets No. 2 seed

BY JARED LLOYD
Daily Herald

All the waiting is finally over. High school boys soccer teams in Class 4A, 5A and 6A finally got to see how they stacked up in the last ratings percentage index (RPI) and how that translated onto the respective playoff brackets.

A couple of teams got good news as they earned some of the top seeds in their respective classifications.

In Utah Valley, American Fork's late push proved to be enough to propel the Cavemen into the No. 2 spot in 6A, just behind top-seeded Farmington.

But the rest of Region 3 was also well represented as Lone Peak got the No. 3 seed, with Pleasant Grove slotted at No. 4.

Skyridge came in as the No. 8-seed, meaning four Utah Valley 6A teams will start out with first-round byes.

Westlake and Lehi, however, will be starting out on the road.

The Thunder, the No. 17-seed, head to Layton to take on the No. 16-seeded Lancers, while the No. 19-seeded Pioneers will play at No. 14 Mountain Ridge in the opening round.

In Class 5A, Wasatch's undefeated season (14-0) was enough to give the Wasps the No. 1 seed, while Salem Hills got the No. 3 spot with its 12-2 record.

The other Region 7 teams that made the tournament, however, will square off against opponents in the first round.

The big battle will be the third go-round for No. 19 Cedar Valley and No. 14 Maple Mountain as those two teams will meet in an elimination game in Spanish Fork.

reasons. Working with Young (who was the top assistant in the NBA) is a big one and so is the culture of BYU in terms of a work environment. During his interview with “BYU Sports Nation,” Burgess also alluded to the commitment of fans in the Big 12 to their respective programs. Utah certainly didn’t have that (as noted by their lack of attendance in the Huntsman Center) and I think that probably played a pretty big part as well. Plus, I’m sure he got a nice bump in salary, since BYU seems to be more amenable to paying their coaches better.

LLOYD: Darnell touched on Burgess’ familiarity with recruiting at BYU and I agree that is a significant benefit that he brings. But I think he brings more to the table. He is a veteran assistant coach now who has been around the new world of college athletics, thus becoming a resource that Kevin Young needs as he familiarizes himself with the requirements. Burgess is also excellent at training post players, something that the Cougars need to have in their arsenal as they face opponents with a lot of size in the Big 12. I think he brings other elements to coaching the fundamentals that will make a difference.

As for why Burgess chose to return to BYU, I think he did enjoy his time in Provo previously but there came a time to move on. So many factors go into these decisions on both ends (the coach and the school) that it’s hard to pick just one or two. I’d be surprised if money wasn’t part of the equation, as well as what Burgess views as a better opportunity to improve.

2. Young also hired Doug Stewart as chief of staff. What the heck does a chief of staff do, anyway?

LLOYD: While I have yet to get into the details of such a position, I suspect it’s generally pretty straightforward. The chief of staff has the task of making sure everyone of the coaches and staff members are doing what they need to be doing. Being a head coach at the major college level has a lot more layers and demands than are often readily apparent. Not only do they need to work with the players on fundamentals and game planning, but they need to take care of fundraising and meeting with donors and all the administrative details. I suspect that the role of associate head coach is intended to aid with that on the coaching side, while the chief of staff job is to aid with that with all the other aspects of the program.

DICKSON: Here’s the best definition I can find for chief of staff in basketball: “A Chief of Staff serves as a liaison of data, facts, and potential consequences so that the head coach can make effective and confident decision making and strategic planning for the team and the organization as a whole.” Not sure that helps a lot, but I do know that the transfer portal and NIL have complicated things for college head coaches. Having a chief of staff seems like the best way to keep everything organized and not let things fall through the cracks. When we get another chance to chat with Young, we’ll ask him to clarify what the chief of staff will be doing.

3. What do you think of the roster third-year BYU women’s basketball coach Amber Whiting is building?

DICKSON: It’s certainly going to be taller: All six additions (so far) are 6-feet or better. I’m sure Whiting noticed the overall size the Cougars faced in the Big 12 and is trying to form a roster to compete there. Even the guards she’s has recruited are 6-feet or taller. The biggest question about the roster is how to replace the production of departed senior Lauren Gustin, who averaged 16.1 points and 16.7 rebounds per game last season. It will probably have to be a group effort because Gustin was a once-in-a-generation player. The Cougars will also have to apply the group mentality to 3-point shooting, where top freshman Kailey Woolston is leaving to serve a church mission after finishing second in the country (46%) in accuracy. Whiting is bringing in three players with collegiate experience from the portal: Hattie Ogden from Buffalo, Marya Hudgins from Santa Clara and Kemery Martin from Cal, and that’s a great move. Of the freshmen, I think Lone Peak’s Sarah Bartholomew could be a sleeper. She’s 6-foot-3 and kind of raw offensively, but she’s a really good athlete who is playing lacrosse for the Knights this spring. She can really move and will be a terrific defender for the Cougars.

LLOYD: Whiting is still looking to get everything clicking and with this being her third year, there is some urgency to show some progress. Last season the Cougars ended up being hurt by the injury to Arielle Mackey-Williams and the departure of Nani Falatea, but those can’t be seen as excuses moving forward. At least the attrition so far this year was somewhat expected. Lauren Gustin is out of eligibility and I assume Kailey Woolston informed Whiting of her plans prior to getting her mission call. Will the additions fill those voids? Probably not individually, but BYU needs them to do it collectively. If the players who have joined the program can come together with the returners and be more physical while taking care of the ball, the Cougars could make a big leap forward next season.

4. Looking ahead (our favorite thing to do) which BYU football player has the best chance at being chosen for the NFL draft in 2025?

LLOYD: You look at recent drafts and you have to say that the smart money is on BYU offensive linemen. With Brady Christensen, Blake Freeland and Kingsley Suamataia all being selected in recent years, it’s clearly the unit that has gotten the most attention of the pros. This year that should be good news for Connor Pay, Caleb Etienne and Brayden Keim, all of whom will be seniors with extensive playing experience. If TJ Woods can get this group to elevate their performance, then that trio could be the next Cougars drafted. I think Pay has the best shot, but don’t be shocked if Etienne’s stock rises with a good season. At 6-foot-8, 315 pounds, Etienne has a big frame and long arms, both of which NFL teams seem to value highly.

DICKSON: I’ll pick one on offense and one on defense. I like what Connor Pay can offer as a center in the NFL, especially because of how smart he handles the position. He also is a straight shooter when it comes to answering questions so I think he’ll make an impression during the interview portions with NFL scouts and general managers. On defense, I know a lot of folks like defensive end Tyler Batty but I’m still waiting for him to have a breakout season. I think he has the ability but I want to see more production from him, especially in the pass rush. So I’ll say Ben Bywater is a guy who could, if healthy, turn some heads at next year’s combine.

5. How much impact do you think former Skyridge quarterback McCae Hillstead can have on the BYU football program?

DICKSON: Hillstead fits Aaron Roderick’s offense pretty well because he can sling it and can move around well outside the pocket. I think he throws well on the run and really understands how to fit the ball where it needs to go. Right away I see him challenging for the backup role once he gets into camp. While many of the BYU quarterbacks have college experience (including Hillstead) there is a possibility that the Cougars may need two or three quarterbacks to get through the Big 12 season. If that’s the case, Hillstead could be an impact player sooner than you think. I still believe its Jake Retzlaff’s job to lose, but Hillstead will show up and compete for sure.

LLOYD: It all comes down to how quickly Hillstead can get acclimated to BYU’s offensive system. Everyone looks at the physical tools and past successes in high school or college and has big expectations, but the reality is those things have to be able to be incorporated in what the Cougars are trying to do. BYU offensive coordinator Aaron Roderick and the entire team can’t afford to mess around. That may mean that there will be harsh decisions regarding playing time as the Cougars seek to find the right fit. Maybe Hillstead is that guy and, when he is healthy, I’ve seen him be incredibly dynamic. But he has a tough road ahead and he’s well behind Jake Retzlaff and Gerry Bohanon. I think he will be fun to watch develop but I don’t know if I expect to see him on the field this year, barring a rash of injuries.

Revitalization

in an area of up to 100 acres adjacent to the Delta Center. “It is our identity as Salt Lakers to be the cultural core, the economic pillar. And it is right for the state of Utah to ensure that that remains and is strengthened,” Mendenhall said about the plans on Tuesday. “These partners want to see that happen.” Some questions remained unanswered after the presentation — the definitive fate of Abravanel Hall, which hosts the Utah Symphony, and the Utah Museum of Contemporary Art, in addition to the planned changes for the Salt Palace Convention Center. “The vision for a revitalized project is in the earliest stages and no decision on the future of Abravanel Hall has been made,” Salt Lake County Mayor Jenny Wilson said, reading a statement. “And the Utah Symphony, Smith Entertainment Group and the Mayor’s Office are committed to working collaboratively towards the mutual goal of ensuring that Salt Lake City continues to enjoy the highest quality symphony hall that meets the needs of its professional musicians and community.” Though there’s still not a decision on those buildings, Maughan said the Smith Entertainment Group would want all of them on site. “This is a sports, entertainment, culture and convention district. Two of the most important elements of our culture and arts programs here in Salt Lake City, Salt Lake County, in the state of Utah and this region are those,” Maughan said, “and we want them on site and want that to be very clear, unequivocally.” However, Maughan added, Abravanel Hall is in need of maintenance and the Salt Palace Convention Center, which is owned and operated by Salt Lake County, is poised for renovations to update its amenities. “The hall that we have right now is not the hall that we need for the convention spaces of the future,” Maughan said, “with more meeting rooms, additional ballroom space, etc. That will allow us to capitalize so much more on the conventions that could be coming here.” All of these renovations are important as these buildings draw many to downtown, he said. About 76% of the most visited days in the neighborhood had an event at the Delta Center and 72% had a convention, with some of those days overlapping. Since Salt Lake City is the preferred host of the 2034 Olympic Games, there have also been conversations about placing the event’s medals plaza in the revitalization zone to accommodate many spectators downtown. Now, the city and the developer are ready to listen to what Utahns think about the project. On Wednesday, the Smith Entertainment Group is scheduled to release a survey to choose the new NHL team’s name, Maughan announced, and the City Council will listen to public comments on the project on May 21.

scored in double figures 12 times en route to averaging a career-high 8.3 points per game, shooting 61.0 percent from the floor. He finished with 189 rebounds including pulling down a team-high 73 offensive boards.

Keita scored a career-high 23 points in a win over Southern Utah going 11-of-12 from the floor. The 6-foot-8 center also had three double-doubles highlighted by a 18-point, 15-rebound performance against Oregon State where he pulled down a career-high seven offensive boards.

Keita appeared in 31 games as a true freshman in 2022-23 averaging 3.0 points and 3.4 rebounds per game. He shot 60.9 percent from the floor, the third-highest clip among freshmen in program history behind Jakob Poeltl and Mikael Jantunen.

He was instrumental in the Utes upset over No. 4 Arizona, finishing with seven points and a then career-high 11 rebounds including five offensive boards.

A three-star recruit out of Wasatch Academy, Keita ranked No. 84 in the ESPN 100. He led the National Interscholastic Basketball Conference (NIBC) in rebounding as a senior after recording four games with double-digit rebounds. He was also named the NIBC Defensive Player of the Year and all-defensive team.

BYU names Tamber McAllister as head swimming and diving coach

BYU director of athletics Tom Holmoe has announced the hiring of Tamber McAllister as the Cougars' swimming and diving head coach.

"I express my gratitude to Tom Holmoe and Chad Lewis for their belief in me," McAllister said. "It is an honor to serve as the head coach of swimming and diving as we continue to embark on our journey into the Big 12 Conference. The legacy established by previous BYU coaches has laid a strong foundation for the team's future success, and I am genuinely thankful for that. The unwavering pride and spirit of the Cougars is unparalleled, and I eagerly look forward to remaining a part of it."

While McAllister will oversee both the men's and women's swim and dive programs, Tyce Routson will continue in his role as head coach of the BYU men's and women's dive teams.

McAllister's coaching career at BYU stretches back almost two decades through three different stints as an assistant coach. Most recently, McAllister worked as an assistant coach from 2021-2024 under now-retired head coach Shari Skabelund. McAllister also held an assistant coaching position with the Cougars from 2012-2018 and 2005-2011. These followed McAllister's decorated BYU swimming career from 2000-2004.

The 2024 season saw McAllister help the Cougars navigate their inaugural Big 12 campaign. Despite the challenges posed by unprecedented competition, BYU swimmers combined to finish the 2024 Big 12 Championships with two individual champions and 24 all-conference honors. The BYU men finished third in the Big 12 while the women took fifth.

McAllister also had a hand in the BYU men's historic success at the 2024 NCAA Championships. The Cougars set school records for swimming entries, at eight, and relay entries, with three. Each of McAllister's most recent three seasons at BYU align with the first three-year stretch in program history where a men's swimmer has qualified for NCAA Championships in three different events.

In 2024, the BYU men also registered their first team points and All-American honors since 2016.

"Tamber is ready and qualified to lead our swim and dive team with vision and energy," said Chad Lewis, BYU associate athletic director and swim and dive sport administrator. "We are very excited about the future of this program."

McAllister's combined 16-year tenure as an assistant at BYU, includes her role in nine All-American performances and 49 individual conference championships along with eight team conference titles.

Cougar swimmers have set 37 school records under McAllister's tutelage, 13 of which came in 2024.

McAllister's vast assistant coaching experience is enhanced by three previous years of head coaching at Utah

Tech (2018-2021). Following her first two stints as a BYU assistant, McAllister left Provo to accept Utah Tech's women's head coaching position.

McAllister led the Trailblazers to third-place finishes in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference in each of her first two seasons. The RMAC honored McAllister as its 2020 Women's Swimming Coach of the Year. In 2021, McAllister oversaw Utah Tech's transition to competing at the Division I level as a member of the Western Athletic Conference. McAllister concluded her tenure at Utah Tech with swimmers breaking over 70 program records.

In between assistant coaching roles at BYU, McAllister led the Wasatch Front Fish Market club team during the 2011-12 season. McAllister also coached for a season at East High School in Salt Lake City prior to returning to coach at BYU.

While a student athlete at BYU from 2000-2004, McAllister specialized in the breaststroke and garnered four Mountain West Conference Championships in the women's 200 breast. Her career-best 200 breast time of 2:14.69, set in 2001, remains fifth all-time at BYU. Prior to putting on a BYU uniform, McAllister competed at the 2000 U.S. Olympic Trials where she finished 12th and 27th, respectively, in the 200 and 100 breast.

McAllister graduated from BYU in 2004 with a bachelor's degree in exercise science. A native of El Dorado Hills, California, McAllister and her husband, Eric, are the parents of four children.

No. 10-seed Timpview will host No. 23 West Jordan, while No. 17 Spanish Fork heads to No. 16 Kearns.

The parity in Region 8 this season resulted in low seeds across the board in Class 4A, with Provo (No. 14), Timpanogos (No. 15), Orem (No. 17) and Mountain View (No. 18) all facing first-round matchups.

The Bruins will play at the Timberwolves in the first round, while the Tigers play at No. 16 Tooele and the Bulldogs host No. 19 Jordan.

All of the first-round games are scheduled to be played at home sites on Friday at 4 p.m.

Orem's Kaylee Westfall tied for third after first day at 4A girls golf tourney

It was a solid opening round for Orem sophomore Kaylee Westfall, who shot a 77 (5-over-par) on the first day of the 4A state girls golf tournament at Talons Cove in Saratoga Springs on Wednesday.

Westfall finished with three birdies and 10 pars, but the five bogeys kept her from being closer to the top of the leaderboard. That score still put her in a tie for third with Green Canyon senior Avery Parker.

She'll need a stellar performance in the second round to have a shot to catch the leader, Crimson Cliffs sophomore Kate Walker, who fired a 65 (7-under-par) on Wednesday.

Timpanogos senior Sydney Draper was the other local golfer who did well on the first day, tying for a 11th with an 84 (12-over-par) on Wednesday.

Orem was the only Utah Valley team to make it to the finals but finished in 13th on the day, failing to make the cut. Crimson Cliffs leads the competition with Green Canyon six strokes back.

Westfall, Draper and all of the other golfers who made the cut are scheduled to compete in the final round of the 4A state girls golf tournament at Talons Cove on today.

High school coaches honored by Utah Sports Hall of Fame Foundation

On April 29, the Utah Sports Hall of Fame Foundation held a banquet to celebrate the contributions of many coaches and athletes, including three with Utah Valley ties.

Mark Low, who coached at both Provo High and Utah Valley University, along with former Pleasant Grove head football coach Bill Mikelson and Spanish Fork head softball coach Don Andrews were recognized by being added to the foundation's Gallery of Honor, but were not inducted into the Hall of Fame as reported.

The Gallery of Honor recognizes the best college and high school coaches, officials and other contributors. Utah Sports Hall of Fame inductions occur in the fall.

The initial report also omitted the recognition of Andrews, who was added to the foundation's Gallery of Honor as a Distinguished High School Coach.

Andrews led the Spanish Fork softball program for 22 seasons where he went 507-125 or an impressive winning percentage of .802. Andrews won six state titles, finished second seven times with three other third place finishes. He led the Don program to 18 region championships.

He was also honored as a region Coach of the Year twice as well being named as the 5A Coach of the Year two times.

Don players under his direction won seven state MVP awards and he had 100 first team and second team all-state performers.

Stop PAD: The Silent Killer

"PAD is often called the silent killer because you may have it and not even know," says Dr. Ryan O'Hara, MD of Comprehensive Integrated Care (CiC). People often dismiss the symptoms of this dangerous disease as 'just a sign of getting older'. But it's not. "If you find yourself needing to rest because your leg cramps when you walk a short distance, or at night you need to stand up to relieve a cramp in your foot, that's your legs and feet telling you they need help," he says.

Peripheral artery disease (PAD) restricts blood flow to the legs and feet. It's often confused with neuropathy as the symptoms are very similar and include difficulty walking without taking a break, burning, tingling, numbness, or pain. "I can't stress enough how important it is to diagnosis the condition that's causing the pain," says O'Hara. Oftentimes, with these symptoms, it's PAD.

PAD is a build-up of fatty material inside the arteries which limits the amount of blood that passes through them. "Blood brings oxygen and nutrients to your legs and feet which they need to stay healthy," explains O'Hara. "If an artery is blocked, oxygen and nutrients can't get to cells causing them to die." Without proper blood supply, your nerves and muscles start burning, tingling, or cramping.

PAD is caused by the buildup of fatty material inside the arteries, limiting blood flow.

The good news is that PAD is treatable. Specialists like Dr. O'Hara are able to perform a minimally invasive procedure in an office setting. "Using image guidance, through a tiny nick in the skin we're able to see if there is a blockage, remove it, and then blood flow improves," explains O'Hara. Patients are able to get back to their everyday lifestyle with almost no downtime. Medicare as well as most insurances cover treatment.

O'Hara says, "I want patients to know that they don't have to live with these symptoms. This is something we can fix."

Dr. Ryan O'Hara is an interventional radiologist who uses minimally invasive techniques to care for conditions that affect the nearly every organ system in the body. They include PAD, Enlarged Prostates, Liver Cancer, PVD, and Uterine Fibroids. He can be reached at 801-810-2999.

Tell neuropathy pain, "later alligator."

If traditional neuropathy treatments haven't given you the pain relief you've been seeking, it's time to start asking questions.

YES / NO

Could I have been misdiagnosed with neuropathy?

If I do have neuropathy, is poor circulation making my symptoms worse?

Is medication the only option to treat neuropathy pain?

If you don't know the answer to these questions it's time to start asking the doctors at CiC questions about how we can treat your symptoms in the comfort of one of our Valley wide locations.

Porcupine aspects

As the Gemini moon gets prickly with Mars and strident with Saturn, closeness is a tricky consideration. Though all relationships have their challenges, emotional intimacy comes with risk so acutely felt that some will leave certain connections in the abstract. What do the porcupines do? The mere willingness to muse on the matter can add sweetness to a journey.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll embrace a balanced perspective toward money. You'll feel empowered to make informed decisions. You'll have an enhanced ability to handle financial challenges with composure and clarity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The day ahead is like a blank page for you to write on. If you feel a little blocked about it, do as the screenwriting gurus suggest — start in the juicy middle. What's the action you most want to experience today?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Prioritize existing relationships to lay a strong foundation for your venture. You think it would be nice to have some new connections and alliances. Indeed it will be! But don't neglect established bonds, which will be more helpful than you might imagine.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It's those moments when luck is not so obvious that bring the best opportunity for celebrating your good fortune. When there's no win — no progress or even justice — you look around and notice the inherent preciousness of your life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Unless you are doing charity, it's a waste of your time, breath, attention and energy to give yourself to an apathetic audience. Bottom line: the people who don't value your input shouldn't be allowed to get it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Possessing skills is one thing; knowing how and when to showcase them for maximum impact is another. Strategic planning will add the extra layer of interest and excitement that makes your project a success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You have much going for you that you do not see. Without provocation, you will make a conscious decision to stop, take stock and celebrate. In doing so, you will magically create more reasons to do so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). An alluring puzzle will be your delight. Your keen intellect shines as you delve into the game. Your ability to decipher codes and discern intentions will extend beyond this challenge and sharpen you for the next one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Try new things. Once is not enough. Repeat your experiment until you feel you can reliably predict how it will go. The windows and doors of knowledge are wide open, inviting you to learn all you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). To have a choice about whom you follow puts you in the minority of humans in the history of humanity. Being thoughtful and objective in these choices is the right that used to be a privilege. You'll weight the morality of your options.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It would seem like things would go better in your team if each person was well-matched to their assigned job. However, this is not always possible and nor is it necessarily true. So let the chips fall as they may.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Stories tell one version of romance, but first-hand experience is really the only way to really learn love. The heart can't be fed on second-hand knowledge; it must beat its way through the music of connection.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 9). You'll wield influence, though power is not what you're after; rather, you're driven by the prospect of making a difference in the world. Led by advantageous professional relationships and tender personal ties, you'll experience new places. Your ideas get a showcase, you'll help with a campaign and you'll have the thrill of a winning streak for your team. Cancer and Capricorn adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 10, 4, 44 and 14.

Legal Notices

NOTICE OF CONTRACTOR'S SETTLEMENT

County of Utah
State of Utah

Notice is hereby given that on or after the 24th day of May, 2024, final settlement will be made by Provo City Corporation, for and on account of the contract of said Geneva Rock Products, Inc. for the furnishing and installation of improvements to the Provo Airport, Schedule(s) I & II (Federal), AIP Project No. 3-49-0027-055-2023; Provo City Bid No. PRO-VOEN202321467 and any person, co-partnership, association or corporation who has an unpaid lien against said Geneva Rock Products, Inc. for or on account of the furnishing of labor, materials, team hire, sustenance, provision, provender or other supplies used or consumed by such Contractor or any of the subcontractors in or about the performance of said work, may at any time up to and including said time of final settlement on said 24th day of May, 2024, file a verified statement in the amount due and unpaid on account of such claim with Provo City Corporation.

Failure on the part of the claimant to file such final statement will relieve said Owner from all and any liability for such claim.

Provo City Corporation
Provo, Utah

Legal Notice 12836 Published in the Daily Herald on May 9, 16, 2024

Notice of Public Comment

The Bureau of Reclamation, working with Southern Utah Valley Power Systems (SUVPS), is providing the public with the opportunity to review the negotiated draft of the title transfer agreement for 30 days beginning May

1, 2024. The draft title transfer agreement can be found at: <https://www.usbr.gov/uc/provo/index.html>

Through development of the Strawberry Valley Project, the United States holds title to the 46kV Power Transmission System and related easements serving south Utah Valley - namely, the communities of Spanish Fork City, Springville City, Payson City, Salem City, and the unincorporated communities of Elk Ridge and Woodland Hills. The Strawberry Valley Project repayment contract was fulfilled in December of 1974, and there are no further repayment obligations for the project. The 46kV Power Transmission System is proposed to be transferred to SUVPS to reduce administrative costs, increase operational efficiencies, and enable SUVPS to fund improvements for the system. SUVPS and its predecessors have provided electrical utility services related to the transmission system for nearly 5-decades. Reclamation formally recognized SUVPS as the O&M contractor for the transmission system in 2015.

For more information, please contact Bryan Schmutz, Project Manager, Provo Area Office at 801-379-1245 or bschmutz@usbr.gov.
