Mr. Harvey,

As a business owner who often calls up and down the wasach front, I would vote NO for an overlay option. It is far easier to remember to call 435 when I call Delta that it would be to remember which area code someone has when they are mixed in one area.

If we need the new area code, assign an area. Just because some other cities decided the other option, doesn't mean we need do. It is far easier to remember 7 digits than 10, and not all people have all phone numbers programmed into their phone, particularly if you are calling new clients, or businesses.

PS, if you do change the area code, please remember it takes a year to change all the phone books. You pulled it off with the 435, don't mess this up this time.
